

NEWVIEW INSTITUTE

OUR MISSION

To promote awareness regarding dynamics associated with domestic and intimate partner violence. To prevent harm and promote healing for youth and adults, both in and outside of the criminal justice system, we provide trauma and grief counseling, coupled with spiritual and emotional support.

“
Be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind and the healing of your soul!

WHO WE SERVE

Clients are typically offenders and/or victim/survivors of domestic/intimate partner violence, human trafficking, and other violent crimes, and their offspring. We engage students in the public school, charter and private school systems who are having difficulty processing their anger. We also serve Veterans, juveniles, at risk-youth who are in placement, returning citizens, persons who have been court mandated to take anger management and/or domestic violence training, as well as those in need of grief support.

OUR APPROACH

Through trauma-informed counseling, support groups, and the arts, we empower survivors to heal, build resilience, and foster healthy relationships. Community outreach and advocacy further address systemic issues related to domestic and intimate partner violence.

Our trainings and services are conducted in men's and women's prisons, schools, churches, and Northwest Victims of Crime and North Central Crime Victim's facilities.
